THE ARGUMENTS ON THE SITE.

Each City in Competition Ably Advocated by Different Orators-- A Vote on the Question in the Near Future-Senate Proceedings and Other Washington Dispatches.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 21.-The two bills providing for the holding of a world's fair were called up in the house yesterday by special order.

Mr. Candler, of Massachusetts, the chairman of the fair committee, an-of each city represented, for discussion, with two hours for the opposition to pre-sent its views, and one hour for a general presentation of the case. The dis-cussion was to begin with the general presentation, and the representatives of the four cities and the opposition were to be allowed one hour each.

of dollars' worth of

DRYGOODS,

Mr. Candler, in beginning his speech on the general features of the project, outlined reasons why a fair should be held. He defended the sections in the general, bills appropriating money for a government exhibit, contending that the people should have a chance to improve themselves by a study of the exhibit that the government of the United States could make. The fair itself would be an honor to the United States. The works of art and objects of curiosity belonging to the government should be given a place in the exposition. The American people believed that the United States government should have an exhibit worthy of 60,000,000 of people. He called attention to the project as a commercial proposition, and said that as a commercial man he knew that its benifts to the country would be great.

Carpets, Oil Cloths, Window Shades, Hats, Caps, Hosiery,

Gloves, Underwear, Table Linens, Towels, Crashes, White

Goods, Etc., to be sold circulation an immense amount of money. The proposition was of as much interest to the south, that might vote against it, as it was to the other sections of the country. Such an institution as the one proposed would bind more closely, he believed, the north and the south

Mr. Candler was greeted with applause at the conclusion of his speech. He reserved the remainder of his speech.
Mr. Flower, of New York, opened the discussion for the metropolis. He said that in 1492 Columbus revealed to mankind a new world and awakened from the repose of centuries a mighty continent, where the germ of a new civilization has quickened to the pulse beat of a powerful nation. It was appropriate, therefore, that the people of the United States should celebrate in 1892, the anniversary of this, the greatest maritime event in the history of the world. He said he believed the selection of New York as the site for the fair mount the York as the site for the fair meant the greatest possible success in this undertaking. New York would assume the responsibility to finance the fair and make it a success. He dwelt upon the claim that the success of the fair depended upon the participation of foreign nations, and said that Chicago, St. Louis and Washington could not offer proper facilities to foreign exhibitors, because of their situation. In conclusion Mr. Fowler said he did not wish to detract from any other city. Mr. Fowler held up a telegram at this moment and announced that Governor Hill had givened the New York weekly for hill signed the New York world's fair bill.

[Applause]. Mr. Moore, of New Hampshire, said Mr. Moore, of New Hampshire, said that a neighborly feeling impelled the people of New England to support the claims of the people of New York. On the Atlantic coast, he said, had been developed the fullest type of the flower of our civilization, and there was no place so fitting for the display of that flower as the city of New York.

Mr. Covert, of New York, claimed that in none of the competing cities except New York could be seen the navies of the world. He thought the greatness of this country could be viewed better nowhere else.

Mr. Cummings, of New York, said that the fair should be held in a city commensurate with the greatness of the undertaking. The selection of a site was a vital point. The fair would not be a world's fair if it was not held at the commercial center of the continent. He advanced many arguments as to the accessibility of New York to all classes.

His speech created much enthusiasm. Mr. Tracy, of New York, said that New York asked only a charter and not a dollar. He dwelt on the fact that New York was more easily accessible to foreign visitors than was any other site.

Mr. Quinn, of New York, spoke at length of the beauties of New York harbor and the Hudson river.

Mr. Sherman, of New York, said that he thought that New York was the best site, but wherever the fair was held it would be the grandest fair in history. Mr. McAdoo said that he was proud of

St. Louis and Chicago, but no exposition would be a success unless it was accessible to the masses as it would be at New York. The work of genius and art were greater than those of agriculture. The people of the United States should be educated by something more than an exhibition of material things. Mr. Hitt, of Illinois, spoke in favor ot Chicago. He said that Chicago was near the center of the United States. It was accessible to the mining regions of Pennsylvania, and the great agricultural belts of the west. Its tonnage was second in size among American cities. He said that if the fair was held in New York, foreigners would stop at the gate of the republic and turn back. If it was held in the west, they would go on and see the grand opulence of the inter-ior. The site at Chicago was ready. It would leave a great hole in the treasury after New York had finished blasting away rocks for a site there. He held that a very small proportion of the attendance at the fair would be that of foreigners. In conclusion, he said that if the fair was held at Chicago it would be a memorable and magnificent success.

Mr. Adams, of Illinois, said that the people of Chicago had a habit of succeeding in whatever they undertook. In England and in France the customs and traditions of 500 years concentrated po-litical and intellectual life at the head city of the nation; with us it was diffused throughout the union. The farmers of the United States rather than the residents of great cities held in their hands the destinies of the republic. Mr. Adams spoke of the cosmopolitan character of the regulation of Chira. acter of the population of Chicago. He referred to the guarantee fund already raised, and said that almost every state Mr. Candler, of Massachusetts, the chairman of the fair committee, announced that the committee had agreed to allot two hours to the representatives of each city represented, for discussion, the Chicago park system.

Mr. McCreary, of Kentucky, argued infavor of Chicago; saying the three greatest National celebrations ever held in this country, had been held in the east, and it was now the turn of the west.

Messrs. Cutcheon of Michigan, Taylor of Illinois, Perkins of Kansas, Chipmaux of Michigan, spoke in favor of Chicago.

Mr. Neidringhaus, of Missouri, spoke for St. Louis, and Mr. Stone, of Missouri, enlarged upon the advantages of the geographical position of St. Louis the geographical position of St. Louis. Mr. Breckinridge, of Arkansas, Mr. Dockery, of Missouri and Mr. Caruth, of Kentucky, favored St. Louis.

Mr. McComas, of Maryland, favored an exposition, but wherever it was held it should be held in Washington, in the district bearing the name of the discoverer of the continent—in the District of Columbia and at the National capital. He invoked the members to seek some higher motive and broader ground than locality. He appealed to the friends of Chicago. New York and St. Louis to come together in peace here, a National ground. There would be no trouble about accommodations. Every other house would be open to visitors, and house would be open to visitors, and Baltimore was within forty minutes' travel.

Mr. Lee, of Virginia, held that Washington was not only the proper but the only place, where the fair should be held. If it was to be National; if we were to invite the governments of for-eign nations, Washington was the proper

Mr. Doleman, of Louisiana, argued in favor of the selection of Washington. Messrs. Compton and Stockbridge, Maryland, urged Washington the mecca of American life, where there was no partisan spirit, as the proper place to hold the exposition. At 5:50 p. m. the house adjourned.

Senate Procedings Washington, Feb. 21-The senate after a breezy debate yesterday, agreed to the resolution calling for information regard-ing the killing of Deputy Marshal Saunders in Florida. The educational bill was again under consideration. The resolution of Mr. Chandler, calling on the attorney general for information as to the the assassination at Quincy, Fla., of W. B. Saunders, deputy United States marshal, was taken up, and Mr. Pasco resumed his remarks in regard to

He sent to the clerk's desk and had read various documents, newspaper articles and proceedings of public meetings denunciatory of the conduct and character of the United States court and its officers in the northern district of Florida. These representations, he said, might tend to throw some light on the causes leading up to the sad affair at Quincy. If the killing of Saunders was a result of the facts and circumstances declared in the papers read, then the senate ought to have all the causes which led up to it. The great trouble in the case was that the principal lawbreakers were the officers of the court.

In conclusion, he offered an amendment directing the attorney general to inform the senate also whether any efforts have been made by the department of justice to correct the action of the officers of the court which has resulted in partisan juries made up mainly from one political party, and if so to report the same to the senate.

Also directing the attorney general to inform the senate when he had any information of an official letter written by Marshal Mizell, directing names of "true and tried Republicans" to be furnished for jurors of the United States court, and what action the department of justice had taken in reference to communications of that character.

Mr. Hawley said that the remarks of the senator from Florida and the amendment offered by him seemed to him to be a premature apology for murder. What, he asked, had the bad character of Saunders and of the administration of justice to do with the murder of Saun-

After some discussion, Mr. Pasco's amendment was on motion of Mr. Chandler, laid on the table, and the resolution calling on the attorney general for information as to the assassination of Saunders was agreed to.

The educational bill was then taken up and Mr. Blair proceeded with his argument in favor of it. In concluding his argument he said the bill had been part of the National Republican platform since 1884. It had been incorporated in the platforms of several states. It had been approved by the action of several state legislatures in quite a number of northern states and in some of the southern states. It had been approved by President Harrison, who had voted twice for it, almost exactly as it now stood, in 1884 and in 1886. In fact the president's hand had been conspicuous in fashioning many of its details when the bill first passed. In spite of all opposition he believed that the sense of self-preservation would cause the bill to be enacted into law.

At the close of Mr. Blair's speech, Mr.

Faulkner obtained the floor to speak on the bill, and the senate, at 5:20, ad-journed.

MARRIED BY TELEPHONE.

What Was Begun in Fun Proves a Serious Reality.

LAPORTE, Ind.. Feb. 21.—Miss Minnie Worley, aged 22, telephone exchange operator at South Bend, and Frank Middleton, aged 25, manager of the telephone exchange at Michigan City, became acquainted over the wires. Finally Middleton proposed in fun that they get married by telephone, and Minnie con-

Boyd's drug store, this city, was called up by telephone and Mr. Boyd was re-quested to call in a justice of the peace. Justice Dibble responded and planting the receiver against his ear intimated that all was ready, and so the marriage ceremony was gone through with, the South Bend and the groom in Michigan City, and the justice in Laporte. Yesterday forenoon the young lady received the marriage certificate properly filled out. Later she received word that her husband was on his way to join her. Probably after consultation they may take steps to ascertain whether the marriage is entirely legal or not.

Eminent legal counsel says the mar-riage is legal and binding, but that Jus-tice Dibble is liable to imprisonment for performing the ceremony without the necessary license. Divorce proceedings will probably be instituted unless they agree to live together. A license has since been secured.

Carnegie's Library.

The Beautiful Building in Allegheny City Dedicated.

DISTINGUISHED PEOPLE PRESENT

The President of the United States Among the Visitors-A Brief Address From Mr. Carnegie and the Keys of the Free Library Are Turned Over to the Mayor - Speech from the President.

PITTSBURG, Pa., Feb. 21.—The president was up bright and early yesterday morning, no trace of fatigue from his journey remaining. A suite of three handsome connecting apartments, consisting of sleeping, dining and reception rooms, on the third floor of the Du-quense club on Sixth avenue, had been placed at the disposal of Mr. Harrison. A number of the president's friends were in waiting in the reception room, and after an exchange of greetings sat with him at breakfast.

At 9 o'clock carriages conveyed President Harrison, Andrew Carnegie, and Governor Beaver, who arrived at an early hour, and other invited guests to a special train, by which they were conveyed to Homestead. Several hours were passed in an inspection of Mr. Carnegie's mammoth steel works at this place. The party returned to the city at carnegie's mammoth steel works at this place. The party returned to the city at 1 o'clock. At half past 1 o'clock the floral banquet, tendered by Mr. Carnegie to his invited guests, and the free library commission, took place.

From 3 o'clock until 5, the presiden. held a public reception in the main hall of the court house which was heauti-of the court house, which was beautifully decorated with flags, bunting, tropical plants and cut flowers. The president occupied a position on the first landing of the stairway.

At 7:30 o'clock in the evening Andrew Carnegie, accompanied by President Harnson and the other invited guests, took carriages at the Duquesne club and

The spacious music hall was filled to overflowing when the distinguished party entered the building. They were greeted with thunders of applause. The National hymn "America" was rendered by the Mozart society, and the audience, accompanied by the Carnegie organ, Right Rev. Cortlandt Whitehead lead in prayer. The hymn, "The Heavens are Telling," was sung by the Mozarts, and Andrew Carnegie was presented to the took carriages at the Duquesne club and Andrew Carnegie was presented to the

Mr. Carnegie was almost overcome at the warmth of the greeting accorded him, and with difficulty delivered a brief address, during which he transferred the golden key of the free library building to the keeping of R. T. Pearson, mayor of the city of Allegheny. In the course of Mr. Carnegie's remarks he was profuse in thanks to those whose aid had been given in carrying his plans to completion. He was proud of the honor conferred by the president of the United States, in that he stands forth the illustrious sponsor of the free library at its christening. Mr. Carnegie stated that the library building was for all time to come the property of the people, and that "every citizen of Allegheny, rich or poor, black or white, can enter this building and truthfully say, 'I am joint proprietor here.'" Mr. Carnegie's remarks were greeted with justly deserved enthusiasm. Mayor Pearson accepted the golden key, replying in a few well chosen remarks.

President Harrison was introduced and warmly received. He commented on his experience of the day in his visit to the more prominent industries, and their probable influence in the commercial world. He then spoke relatively to Mr. Carnegie's gift to the city as the transfer of precious metal into something that bloomed for eternity. He believed that the generosity of the donor would serve as impulse and inspiration and that others would be influenced to do like-

President Harrison then declared the library open to the public, charging the recipients to be jealous and circumspect.

Bucklen's Arnica Salve.

The best salve in the world for cuts, of health and strength renewed and of bruises, sores, ulcers, salt rheum, fever sores, tetter, chapped hands, chilblains, Syrup of Figs, as it acts in harmony with Prejudice Against Will Making.

One of the most unreasonable superstitions is that possessed by so many people that deters them from making their wills, trusting to good luck to have time when the candle of life is flickering out. A lady of unusual culture and strength of character, a leader in a wide social circle, and active in movements for the advancement of her sex, died not long since of a third stroke of paralysis. She had a good deal of property and many articles of rare value that she designed to leave to a cherished young lady companion, but even after the second stroke, and she knew that a third would be fatal, she could not bear to think of making her will. She dropped off suddenly, and her friend is without anything, while remote relations get all. The instance is familiar to many in this city, but is not singular .- St. Paul Globe.

An Unexpected and Enormous Socialist Vote Polled.

DOUBLED IN MANY PLACES.

Their Strength Developed Where Before There Was None-Increase in Berlin 20,000, the Conservatives Losing 34,-000-Other Foreign Dispatches.

BERLIN, Feb. 21.—The election for members of the reichstag took place yesterday. The vote polled was phenomenially large.

In this city the vote is as follows: In the First district-Progressist candidate, 6,700; Conservative, 4,800; Socialist,

Second district-Professor Virchow, 18,001; the Socialist candidate, 19,010; Conservative candidate, 14,017. Third district—Progressist candidate, 11,576; Socialist, 12,280. In all these districts there are supplementary elections necessary.

In the Fifth district the Progressist candidate had 10,100 and the Socialist

At Leipsig a second election is neces-

Saxony. Auer, Socialist, is elected for Zwickau;

Stolle, Socialist, is elected for Danzig.
At Zittau, Koenigsburg, Staaten and Lubec second elections are necessary. For Meiningen a Progressist is elected.

At midnight the apparent result is that the government parties have lost fifteen seats, and the Socialists throughout Germany have doubled their vote. Herr Liebknecht and Herr Singer are elected. The latter, a Socialist, defeated Eugene Richter, one of the most distinguished of German politicians and a leader of the German Liberal party. Singer is the man whose libel case against The Staatsburger Zeitung made a great deal of noise in December last. He gained his case, and the editor was con-demned to pay a fine; and this fine the emperor remitted, using his royal prerogative to set aside the verdict of a court of justice. This made a great sensation, and Singer's candidacy became a sort of rallying center for protest against such an abuse of power. His election was an almost necessary consequence. In Hamburg the Socialists Bebel, Dietz aud Meltzer are elected. The weather was favorable to the opponents of Socialism. Previous experience shows that the Socialists disregard the elements, but the pleasant day brought out the other vote. The Socialists had forced the closing wherever possible of all workshops and factories. There was tremendous voting in the afternoon. One great point in the vote in Berlin was the complete absence of the anti-Semitic faction, who abstained from voting because the candidates did not meet the approval of the Cartel electoral committee. Disorder was thus averted.

The indications are that the Deutsche Freisinnige party may secure at best two seats in Berlin, and it is unlikely that this party will lose all others throughout the country. The great fact of the election is the enormous and unexpected increase in the Socialist vote. This party has manifested strength in places where it was unknown before, and the other parties will have to make a firm combination against it to stem the tide on the supplementary elections. In the vote in Berlin alone these changes are shown: The Socialist vote is increased 20,000, the Duetsche Freisinnige 3,000, and the Conservatives have lost 34,000.

When Prince Bismarck entered the polling place everybody present arose from their seats except one Socialist. The chancellor said: "This is probably the last time I shall ever vote." chairman expressed the hope that he might enjoy his strength for many years. Bismarck said: "Why, I am 75; at my age five years is a very long time."

Liebknecht polled 30,293 votes. Richter is elected for Hagen. The Socialists were successful at Eberfeld, Barmen and Frankfort, and have good prospects for success in the second elections at Staaten, Breslau and Bremen.

A great sensation was created at 1 o'clock in the afternoon by the sudden receipt of an order from the emperor for the city to march to Kreuseburg forthwith. The order was instantly complied with. The people were almost panicstricken until it was announced that the maneuver was simply one of the military surprises inaugurated by the emperor to test the efficiency of the garrison to repel a sudden attack by an enemy.

The troops proceeded to Templehof, where they remained several hours engaged in maneuvers. They were afterward inspected by the emperor and returned to the barracks at nightfall.

A Private Policeman Kills His Brotherin-Law in Columbus O.

COLUMBUS, O., Feb. 21.—Yesterday afternoon Richard C. White, a private policeman, found his brother-in-law Achilles Kell talking to the former's wife near the Danish hotel and shot twice in succession at Kell, one or both shots striking Kell in the left side of the head near the ear, inflicting fatal wounds. Kell, accompanied by Mrs. White was taken to the hospital, White at the prison said: "I have repeatedly warned that man (meaning the victim, whose name is Achilles Kell) to keep away from my wife. This afternoon I saw them together on East Naghton street. I went up to them and I think I asked him what are you doing with my wife, I then shot twice at him, I dont know whether both bullets took effect or not."

White and his brother-in-law, Kell, figured quite prominently in a shooting affair some time since. White, who is a private watchman in the east end, went home one evening and found Kell in his wife's bed room with his boots off. He became enraged and fired his revolver several times. White was arrested but nothing ever came of the case. About a month ago White appeared at the city prison and reported that his wife had disappeared from home and that he was disappeared from home, and that he was afraid she had committed suicide, as she took no clothes with her. When asked at the patrol house yesterday afternoon White said that his wife had returned to their home the next day after her disappearance, He charges Kell with being too intimate with Mrs. White. That was the cause of the shooting.
